Hmm...
What Has
She Done?

Lange with Dustin Hoffman in 1982's Tootsie.

JESSICA LANGE's big break was the 1976 remake of King Kong. But her latest project appears to be a re-design of her own face. Star asked New York plastic surgeon Dr. Scot Bradley Glasberg what procedures the 55-year-old may have had. His summary? "She has had significant work done."

BROW LIFT?

"Her brows seem heightened and separated — both suggestive of a brow lift," says Dr. Glasberg. And her forehead looks "almost frozen. She's smiling without wrinkles. These are signs of Botox."

FACE LIFT?

"It appears she's had a facelift," says Dr. Glasberg. "She was getting jowly on the sides of her chin and had marionette lines [wrinkles at the corners of the mouth], but now these have vanished."

LID WORK?

Dr. Glasberg says he believes Lange has had both upper and lower lid work. "There's a difference in the lid lines between photos," he says, adding that now she's missing the "eye puffiness that was evident earlier."
